Summertime has been a busy time for all of us, I hope you are surviving it well. I am surprised that it has gone by so fast.

At our last meeting we had an interesting discussion on batteries. The main topic was the recharging and maintenance of NiCads. Our presenter was from our local Maha Distributor located at 2841 B Saturn St., Brea 92821. Phone Number 1-800-376-9992

Robert Syms ko6zl had a lot of good information for us. For instance, how many hams keep a spare battery or two in their car for an emergency type use? Did you know that heat is an extreme burden on a battery? Just sitting around a battery will lose its charge, but if left in a hot glove box or hot car, the loss is increased greatly.

Maha makes a very good universal battery charger that includes a discharge function to renovate a lot of batteries. In fact I used mine this weekend to restore camcorder batteries that haven't been touched since 1995 and after a couple cycles the batteries work good. I highly recommend that charger.

One of the things that Robert mentioned on proper discharge of a battery took a lot of us by surprise. The popular notion is to let a battery be used on a HT until the radio quits then change batteries. It seems that the radio manufacturers let the radios go way beyond a safe discharge point thus reducing the life of the battery. It's much better to change batteries quicker.

We went to COCO'S for the monthly board meeting back @ the 91 and 55 area. Breakfast was great but we were a little shy on people so we had an informal meeting only.

Little did we know -----

Have you ever wondered why we radio amateurs are called HAMS? Well it goes something like this - the word ham was applied in 1908 and was the call letters of one of the first amateur wireless stations operated by some of the members of the Harvard Radio Club. They were Albert Hymen, Bob Almy and Peggie Murray. At first they called their station Hyman-Almy-Murray. Tapping out such a long name in code soon called for a revision, and they changed it to Hy-Al-Mu, using the first two letters of each name. Early 1909 some confusion resulted between signals from HYALMU and a Mexican ship named Myalmo, so they decided to use only the first letter of each name and identified their station as HAM. In the early pioneer and unregulated days of radio, amateur operators picked their own frequencies and call letters.

Then, as now, some amateurs had better signals than some commercial stations. The resulting interference finally came to the attention of congressional committees in Washington, DC and they gave much thought to proposed legislation designed to critically limit amateur activity. In 1911, Albert Hyman chose the controversial Wireless Regulations Bill as the topic of his thesis at Harvard. His instructor insisted that a copy be sent to Senator David Walsh, a member of the committee hearing the Bill. The Senator was so impressed that he sent for Mr. Hyman to appear before the committee. Hyman was put on the stand and described how the little amateur station, HAM, was built, and he almost cried when he told the crowded committee room that if the Bill went through, they would have to close up the station because they could not afford the license fees and other requirements which were set up in the bill. The debate started and the little station HAM became a symbol of all the little amateur stations in the country that were crying out to be saved from the menace and greed of the big commercial stations who did not want them around. Finally the Bill got to the floor of Congress and every speaker talked about the poor little station, HAM.

That's how it all got started. You can find the whole story in the Congressional Record. Nationwide publicity identified the station HAM with amateurs. From that time to this, and probably to the end of time, in radio, "Every amateur is a HAM"....

And that's the world in a nutshell - an appropriate receptacle.
